THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by Which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses—No Weakening of the Nerves—A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no senes a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. "The HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. E 428, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Marstreet, Philadelphia.

The Drones In a Beehive.

To the drones nature has certainly been very bountiful. They are very large and strong, have a helmet made of enormous black pearls, two lofty quivering plumes, a doublet of iridescent, yellowish velvet, a heroic tuft and a fourfold mantle, translucent and rigid.

While the workers have 12,000 facets to their eyes, the drones are gifted with 26,000; while the workers have 5,000 olfactory cavities in their antennæ, the drones have over 60,000. While the workers are laboring for the benefit of the community the drones sail off every bright morning into space, irresistible, glorious, and tranquilly make for the nearest flowers, where they sleep till the afternoon freshness awakes them.

Then, with the same majestic pomp and still overflowing with magnificent schemes, they return to the hive, go straight to the cells, plunge their heads to the neck in the vats of honey and fill themselves tight as a drum to repair their exhausted strength, whereupon, with heavy steps, they go forth to meet the good, dreamless and careless slumber that shall fold them in its embrace till the time for the next repast.—Maeterlinck's "Life of a Bee."

Bullfighters Afraid of Cows.

It will probably not surprise our readers to hear that most Spanish bullfighters object to fighting cows. The real reason may, however, astonish them. A sportsmanlike objection to persecuting a female animal has nothing whatever to do with it. The fact is that the average toreador is sincerely afraid of a cow.

And he has good reason. The cows of the half wild breed used for the arena are much quicker in their movements than are the bulls. Their horns are more pointed and more formidable. They do not lower their heads to the ground, shut their eyes and charge like a locomotive upon the rails, but are alert and ready to follow every movement of their persecutors. Their warlike tactics have been adapted not to blind, bovine frontal attacks, but to the strategy of active and cunning beasts of prey, of which the human bullfighter is only a feeble mimic. If these cheap idols of the Spanish populace would face young and active wild cows which had just been robbed of their calves, they might perhaps forestall the butcher, but they would, at any rate, do something to earn their laurels.—Pearson's.

An Editor and a Golden Hair.

"One beautiful spring morning an editor found a golden hair lying between the pages of a manuscript," writes Edward Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. "The moment he reached the page it gracefully fluttered out. Flushed with excitement, the editor caught it. It was not his hair, he argued, therefore it was not his property. Then, again, he thought, the owner probably lost it and might need it. So he put it back. He was a methodical man, and he replaced it exactly as he had found it. He was not many days older when he received a letter proving by the very hair he had so dexterously caught and conscientiously replaced that he never had read or even opened the manuscript of the writer. Could anything have been a clearer case against the editor? Most certainly not. It was conclusive and final, don't you see?"

A Little Drama.

In the morning a workman kissed his wife and children and went to help a hundred others tear down a building.

During the day he slipped and fell.

Then came an ambulance and a hospital and then a bit of black crape on an obscure door.

His children went on without their father.

His wife, whose life had been bound up in that of her husband, grew pale and died.

Helplessness killed the little ones.

Yet in speaking of the accident men said:

"It was not so bad. Only one man was killed."—Chicago Journal.

Frogs as Scavengers.

Frogs are fine scavengers, destroying great quantities of decaying animal substance in springs and brooks and keeping the water pure, thus proving themselves most worthy of kind treatment and preservation. They devour, too, great numbers of insects, including flies and mosquitoes. In spite of their queer shape, they are remarkably expert jumpers and swimmers, and many a boy has learned from them both how to play leapfrog and how to swim.

Displaying His Caution.

"I notice he was unusually formal and circumspect in his behavior," she told her dearest friend, "and I thought at first I had offended him in some way."

"Had you?"

"Oh, no. As soon as Brother Willie came in and got the phonograph he had inadvertently left on the table everything was all right again."—Chicago Post.

His Repairs.

Landlord—But the agreement was that you should make your own repairs.

Tenant—That's all right, but I expect you to make the repairs of the house.—Boston Transcript.

The Child at Play.

Play is the means whereby individual powers are acquired. It is the apprenticeship for the work of life. A little child at play is "at his lessons."—H. B. Drummond's "The Child."

About Right.

No man should ever make excuses to a woman who loves him. Let him say he is sorry and loves her, and she will make the excuses a[illegible] them too.—New [illegible]

A Slight Deficit.

A weather stained, creaking wagon drew up in front of a photographer's establishment in a Georgia town. Beneath its body a lean hound came to a standstill. A man clad in jeans trousers, homespun shirt and guiltless of coat or vest emerged from the vehicle's anterior extremity. Settling his soft slouch hat on the back of his head, he adjusted his lone gallus and gave the lines to the wife and baby within. Behind these, from the dome of canvas beyond, peered, big eyed and solemn, numerous editions of the lord and master.

Entering the shop, the stranger paused before a case of sample photographs and, pointing to one, said, "Mister, what d'yer charge fer takin picters like that?"

"Three dollars a dozen," replied the clerk.

Thrusting his hands into his pockets, he turned thoughtfully toward the wagonful of offspring. "Waal, I reckon I'll have ter wait a bit," he said softly to himself. "I ain't got but 'leven."—Harper's Magazine.

One Passenger Too Many.

A good story is going the rounds of the offices of the Metropolitan Street Railway company concerning the wonderful presence of mind displayed recently by a new conductor on one of the company's trolley cars. This particular car was bowling along up Broadway recently when it was hailed and boarded by a company inspector.

The official hurriedly counted the passengers in the car and found that there were nine. Then he cast his eye up to the register and found that there had been only eight fares rung up. He disclosed his identity to the new conductor and called attention to the discrepancy.

Slowly and painfully the new hand counted over his passengers and then scanned his register.

"Begorra, an you're roight, sir," he said and promptly stopped the car.

"Say," he demanded, addressing the passengers in an authoritative manner, "wan o' youse fellows'll hov to git off the car-r."—New York Times.

Cleaning Oil Paintings.

An art journal suggests raw potatoes to clean oil paintings. Have a few potatoes at hand, each cut in halves. The fresh surface is dampened slightly with cold water and used to rub the canvas. As the potatoes show soil the surface is sliced off and the rubbing continued. This process will create a little lather, which should be wiped off as fast as it accumulates with a clean, damp sponge. When the whole canvas is cleaned, it should be washed over lightly with clean water from which the chill has been taken and finally the water carefully wiped off with an old clean silk handkerchief. Raw potatoes to clean paintings are frequently in heresay evidence, but this description of the process may be of value. It is suggested by way of reasonable caution that the experiment should be tried first upon a canvas of trifling value and upon one corner of that.

The Collection.

While lecturing his congregation rather strongly on a recent Sunday about slack attendance and small collections a minister of a church in an English city used the following eloquent and forcible sentence: "Yes, brethren, our collection of a little over £3 last Sunday included no fewer than 500 halfpennies. We all know about the widow's mite, and I am sure we are very glad to receive it; but I don't think there are 500 widows in this congregation!"

Witness My Hand.

In the early days only a few scholars, priests and clerks knew how to write. It was then customary to sign a document by smearing the hand with ink and impressing it upon the paper, accompanied by the words, "Witness my hand." Afterward the seal was introduced as a substitute for the hand mark and was used with the words above quoted, the two forming the signature. This is the origin of the expression as used in modern documents.

Just as Bad.

Educated Egyptian—You have no wonderful hieroglyphics in your country, sir; no mysterious inscriptions, no undecipherable relics of an ancient literature whose secrets the wise men of the world have tried for ages to discover.

Tourist—No, we haven't any of those things, but (brightening up) we've got our "railway guides."—London Fun.

Novel Ammunition.

During the sieges of medieval times it was very common for the beleaguers to throw from their catapults and other military engines dead bodies of dogs, swine, together with pieces of horseflesh and similar carrion into the city or castle besieged in order that the defenders might by the stench of this putridity be forced to a surrender.

Well Concealed.

"What was the matter with Proudfoot that he made such a fool of himself last night?"

"Oh, somebody had offended him unwittingly, and he was standing on his dignity."

"Oh, was he? I wondered what had become of it."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

One Way of Looking at It.

Mabel—Miss Small is treating poor Johnstone shamefully!

Ethel—Oh, really, I haven't heard anything.

Mabel—Haven't you? They say she's going to marry him.—London King.

Blood oranges are sometimes artificially produced by injecting a few drops of claret through a small aperture in the rind.

The Old Fashioned Boy.

At a little dinner of a few old timers in this city the other night one of the speakers said:

"What has become of the old fashioned boy, the one who looked like his father when his father carried the sort of pomposity which was like the divinity that hedged a king in the time when kinghood was in its break of day, the boy who wore a hat which threatened to come down over his ears, the boy whose trousers were made over from his father's by his mother or aunt or grandmother, the boy whose hair had a cowlick in it before and was sheared off the same length behind, the boy who walked with both hands in the pockets of his trousers and who expectorated between his teeth when his teeth were clamped together, the boy who wore boots run down at the heels, the boy who never wore knickerbockers or a roundabout coat, the boy whose chirography was shaped by the gymnastics of his tongue, the boy who believed his father was the greatest man in the world and that he could have been president if he had wanted to be, the boy who was his mother's man when the man was away from home?"—New York Sun.

Virtue of the Mafia.

Among the Mafia "onesta" is the great virtue. This virtue is said to be possessed by those who never under any circumstances help the authorities by giving information, not even of crimes of which they may be the victims. To give information is to forfeit all honor, to become a "cascittuni," or spy.

This feeling which underlies the Mafia, which is not old, but was born in Sicily at the beginning of the nineteenth century, is due to the inborn hatred which the Sicilian has for government. Any interference of the authorities in his private affairs he regards with jealousy and distrust. In his sight a man who calls on the authorities for anything is vile. He believes in settling private differences privately, either by fair fight or murder.

No matter what a member of the Mafia may suffer, he will never inform. If he recovers from an injury, he will avenge himself if he can, and if he cannot he blames no one and would scorn to even take the authorities into his confidence. A Sicilian proverb runs, "If I live, I will kill you; if I die, I forgive you."

Geographical Distribution of Hair.

The geographical distribution of the hair over the habitable world is, as regards the color, very precisely definable. The xanthocomic or light haired races are to be found north of latitude 48 degrees, which cuts off England, Belgium, the whole of northern Germany and a great portion of Russia. Between this parallel and latitude 45 degrees, including northern France, Switzerland and part of Piedmont and passing through Bohemia and Austria, there is a sort of debatable land of more or less dark brown hair, and below this line we come gradually upon the Melanic races. The people of Europe therefore present in the color of hair an almost perfect gradation, the light flaxen of the colder latitudes deepening imperceptibly into the blue black of the Mediterranean shores.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Queer Land Tenures.

Some of the tenures in England are very curious. A farm near Broadhouse, in Yorkshire, pays annually to the landlord a snowball in midsummer and a red rose at Christmas. The manor of Foston is held by a rental of two arrows and a loaf of bread. An estate in the north of England is held by the exhibition before a court every seven years of a certain vase owned by the family, another in Suffolk by an annual rental of two white doves.

Out of Plumb.

When the wall is out of plumb the building is more or less unsafe, and the higher the wall is carried out of the perpendicular the greater the danger of collapse. It's about so with the health; it is out of plumb when the digestion is impaired, when there is a dull, sluggish feeling, with nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness. Every day that these symptoms are neglected increases the liability to physical collapse.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and cures nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness by curing the diseases in which they originate.

"For three years I suffered untold agony," writes Mrs. H. R. White, of Stanstead, Stanstead Co., Quebec. "I would have spells of trembling and being sick at my stomach, pain in right side all the time; then it would work up into my stomach and—such distress it is impossible to describe. I wrote to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, stating my case to them, and they very promptly answered and told me what to do. I took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and five vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Thanks to Dr. Pierce and his medicine I am a well woman to-day. Dr. Pierce's medicines also cured my mother of liver complaint from which she has been a sufferer for fifteen years. We highly recommend these medicines to all suffering people."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 21 one-cent stamps for expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic Asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After taking one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.
Yours respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO. February 5, 1901.

IMPROVEMENT CLUBS.

Apropos to the organization of a Ladies' Improvement Club in this place, which will be perfected to-day in Union Hall by the ladies, we excerpt the following from the Sacramento Record-Union of the 1st inst :

"In such clubs there is no political activity or ax-grinding. They are purely and wholly unselfish organizations, the one purpose of which is to cultivate the spirit of progress, to insure neatness and cleanliness, to build up public spirit, to debate local questions of betterment, to enlist even the women and children in quickening the spirit of cleanliness of streets, private grounds and general beautifying of the city."

"Let us hope that these clubs will be formed. No time is better than the present. The winter is at hand, and one evening in a fortnight cannot be better used than in club assemblies in the school houses for the sole purpose of discussing city improvements and bringing to bear upon community thought, the necessity for a more progressive spirit among our people."

"Sacramento advances, but too slowly. Her people are conscious of all her needs, but they have no unified means of expressing them, no agency for devising plans for their accomplishment. We need betterments in our parks; we need a boulevard, encircling the city by selected streets; we need a children's play-ground; we need statues in public places; drinking fountains for the multitude; more driveways; cleaner streets; better enforcement of ordinances against dumping rubbish in the streets, and better observance of sanitaay regulations. We need to cultivate greatly more true community spirit and pride in the town, and to unify such force and make it effective in good works. By club agency all this may be accomplished."

DR. GARDNER, ex-Superintendent of the State Hospital at Napa, who was recently deposed by the Board of Managers and his place given to Assistant Superintendent Dozier, has had his name taken off the pay-roll and his household supplies cut off. Nothwithstanding this Dr. Gardner refuses to step down and out and there is fun ahead. At a meeting of the Board of Managers last Saturday a son of Dr. Gardiner, who held the position of store-keeper in the institution, was bounced and his position given to Mr. Stohl of Napa. Mrs. McKabe, the matron, was also retired and Mrs. McKay, assistant matron was given her place. It is Dr. Gardner's intention to resist his removal in the courts.

THE labor strike in San Francisco has at last been settled. The union men are to be reinstated and the employers are to be permitted to run their own business. The terms of the settlement will not be made public but there were concessions on both sides and the above is about the sum and substance of the compromise by which the strike was terminated very abruptly last Wednesday afternoon. Many innocent parties were affected by the strike, which for a time threatened to ruin the business interests of the State. The laboring classes of the metropolis, in battling for what they conceived to be their rights, exhibited wonderful strength and backing.

ANOTHER dividend has been declared by the board of directors of the California Cured Fruit Association. This latest dividend is $200,000, and is payable at once. This addition makes over a million and a half of dollars which the association has declared in dividends. The officers state that three car loads of prunes were sold Saturday on the 8¼ cent basis.

THE OBSERVER.

GOSSIP.

Gossip is altogether a too important element in every day life. People gossip because they have nothing else to do. The average conversation is of a gossipy character. Having exhausted the weather topic you begin to criticise the looks and actions of your friends and neighbors. While you are busy talking of them they are probably using you the same way. Such conversation is narrow. Talking of each other and repeating this hear say and that hear-say cannot improve nor broaden character. You belittle yourself when you gossip. You may afford amusement to a few idle-brained companions but would it not be better to try and elevate them and raise them out of the old rut. Get them interested in some theme or topic and stimulate their interest in various ways. Your theme or topic need not be deep It may even be trivial in a way, but it will brighten the sluggish brain and new thoughts will be flashed across a horizon otherwise quite monotonous. Talk of books, plays, fashions, natural phenomena, great men and great women. Talk of anything but do not gossip. If you gossip about other people to me I am pretty sure you gossip about me to other people. Keep this in mind. When you begin to gossip you are putting a tag on yourself—"My tongue can't keep still." Wherefore people will not trust you. They feel that you have no control over yourself. Gossip is not always of a malignant character and yet by the time it goes the round of a few talkers it is pretty apt to be so. Remarks are misconstrued by the gossiper. In telling a story she never fails to retain the bad while she invariably leaves out the good.

Gossip is for the vulgar. Gossip betrays a shallow mind. Try and eliminate it from your every day life. When company comes in don't promote conversation of a gossipy character. Try and steer clear of the shoals of slander.

"So many Gods, so many creeds,
So many paths that wind and wind ;
When just one act of kindness
Is all this sad world needs."

Life is a book written by ourselves. Its pages may be filled with good or ill. The best book a man can write is one in which is recorded each day some little good done to fellow men. It is little acts of kindness that bespeak a noble nature.

A rich man may give $10,000 to a charitable institution some time in his life. This act is commendable but cannot compare with the gift of a poor man who gives each day a portion of his scanty pittance to some fellow creature in need. A man may possess great inventive genius and give to the world as wonderful a discovery in electricity. Even he has not written the best book, for the gift of genius is as a spark struck off at random and it comes from the head not the heart.

The book left us by President McKinley was graven with many good deeds but of all its pages those on which the name of his beloved wife appeared were most worthy. At his acts of kindness and devotion to her let us always place our bookmarks.

A book full of little kindnesses from the cradle to the grave will be our surest passport to heaven. Let us then live with this end in view. Do not let a single day pass without making some one happy. To-day is yours. To-morrow may not be.

A number of San Francisco ladies have established a hospital for cats. The ladies are not old maids. What then is the solution? Why should they wish to preserve the nine lives in each of the feline kind? In all probability it is the old feminine fear of rats and mice that prompts their philanthropy in this direction.

The press had a sensational story this week about an attempt to blow up the vault holding the remains of the late President McKinley. We heard the report but that's all there was to the yarn.

Scott's Emulsion can make him use it. How? By making him hungry, of course. Scott's Emulsion makes a thin body hungry all over. Thought a thin body was naturally hungry didn't you? Well it isn't. A thin body is asleep—not working—gone on a strike. It doesn't try to use it's food.

Scott's Emulsion wakes it up—puts it to work again making new flesh. That's the way to get fat.

"Wasp" McKinley Memorial Number.

THE McKinley Memorial Edition issued by the San Francisco Wasp has been received with great favor by the public and several editions have been required to meet the enormous demand for it. Its success is fully deserved as no finer souvenir has ever been issued. It contains a great number of beautiful engravings descriptive of President McKinley's recent visit to California and the various receptions accorded him in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Francisco, San Jose, etc. The part taken by President McKinley in the launching of the battleship Ohio, his speech to the workingmen of San Francisco, the naval procession on the San Francisco Bay, and in fact all the principal events of the late chief magistrate's tour are treated admirably in artistic engravings. There are also full page portraits of the President in his late Canton home, of Mrs. McKinley, President Roosevelt and family, and the Cabinet officers. The closing scenes of the martyred President's life are reproduced and the last speech reprinted in full. Life-like pictures of Presidents Lincoln and Garfield are given. The introductory poem "Resignation," has received unqualified praise for the elevated tone in which it treats the sentiment of the martyred President's last words, "It is His way, God's will be done." The splendid memorial number is for sale by all news dealers.

H. H. Cass, a well-known hardware merchant of San Francisco, is sojourning for a few weeks at the French Cottage.

The new bridge across the creek opposite the Bellevue Hotel is nearly completed. It was a much-needed improvement.

Miss Jennie Dutil, after a pleasant visit of several weeks with her parents in this place, returned to her home in San Francisco Sunday.

J. J. Johnson, foreman of the Nordwell ranch, met with a painful accident Thursday morning. While handling some old lumber one of the fingers of his left hand was badly larcerated by a rusty nail.

A big band of Piute Indians passed through here Sunday on the Southern Pacific. They were en route from the hop fields near Santa Rosa to their reservation in the the State of Nevada. The experiment of employing them in the hop fields was tried for the first time this year. As a general thing poor Lo is lazy and indolent but when he gets in a hop field he appears to get a move on and makes a passable good hop picker.

Many of the guests of the various summer resorts in this place and vicinity left for San Francisco Thursday afternoon on account of the settlement of the great strike in that city. Ever since the the strike was inaugurated several months ago the resorts of Sonoma Valley have been crowded with the locked-out men and their families, probably the first outing ever had by many of these toilers of the metropolis, and they enjoyed their enforced vacation immensely.

MISCELLANEOUS.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Rain and Grapes.

The past week the weather has been threatening to the grape crop. The sky has been overcast with clouds and there has been occasional showers, but not sufficient to retard grape-picking and wine-making which is being pushed forward with all speed in anticipation of early fall rains. So far the rain that has fallen has done no damage whatever and should the weather prove favorable for a couple of weeks longer it will mean a prosperous season for both the grape grower and the winemaker. Grapes are now bringing between $20 and $30 per ton in this valley, and although the crop is a light one these figures will bring in better returns than would a heavy crop at the price paid a few years ago.

THEY WERE DISCHARGED.

Outcome of the Arrest of John Hess and J. Dietchwander.

On Wednesday last M. C. Barrickman, who hails from Sebastopol, appeared in town on foot. He had been fearfully beaten and his face and clothes were covered with blood. He hunted up Deputy Sheriff Ryan to whom he told a tale of being beaten and robbed. He claimed that while driving into town from Petaluma he was set upon by two men unknown to him who, after giving him a severe beating, jumped into his spring wagon and drove off leaving him to make his way into town on foot.

Later on Barrickman went before Judge Small, Justice of the Peace, and swore to a complaint charging John Hess, a well-known dairyman of this valley, and Joe Dietchwander with appropriating "with great force and violence and unlawfully and felonously" one horse and spring wagon belonging to complainant.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Ryan who arrested the accused and brought them before Judge Small, who released them on a small bail bond.

The arrest, particularly of Hess who has lived here for years and has always borne a good name, created no little excitement.

There were two sides to the story, however, and when the preliminary examination was held before Judge Small on Thursday afternoon the true facts of the case came out and the defendants were discharged from custody.

The testimony showed that Barrickman, the owner of the rig, met Hess and Dietchwander at a roadside resort half-way between this place and Petaluma, and offered to sell the horse and wagon for $50. The offer was taken up by Hess and a bill of sale drawn up. As Hess did not happen to have $50 with him the three men jumped into the rig and started for the Peter Kiser ranch where Hess was to collect enough money to make up the fifty dollars. While driving along the county road the men, who were somewhat under the influence of liquor, became involved in a dispute and Barrickman, the complainant, assaulted Hess with a cane. The latter retaliated with his fists and a scrap followed in which all three took a hand. Barrickman, being the under dog in the fight, gathered himself together, made his way into town on foot and told his hard luck story. Meanwhile Hess and his companion jumped into the wagon and started to drive the horse into town as they did not wish to leave the animal standing alongside the road.

These and other facts in connection with the alleged offense were brought out at the examination and as it was evident to the court that no crime had been committed the defendants were discharged.

The defense was represented by Emmet Seawell of Santa Rosa, while Assistant District Attorney Weske of Santa Rosa represented the prosecution.

The discharge of the defendents seems to meet with general approval.

THE BACHELOR'S TREAT.

A Complimentary Dinner to Skelton Glaister.

"We may live without friends, we may live without books,
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.
He may live without love—what is passion but repining?
But where is the man who can live without dining?"

Adam Adler, in his cozy bachelor quarters on Spain street, entertained a number of friends at dinner last Saturday evening in honor of the approaching nuptials of Skelton Glaister. Mr. Adler was assisted by Geo. Bulotti, who prepared an elaborate menu for the dinner party and proved himself as skilled a chef as ever crossed the pond. Covers were laid for ten in the handsomely decorated dining room and the following courses were served:

Green Turtle Soup
Shrimp Salad
Sauterne
Vermecelli with Mushrooms
Risoto a la carte
Roast Chicken. Oyster Patties
Rum Omlet
Fruit. Cafe Noir

The guests were loud in their praises of the hospitality of their young host and his bachelor friend and they declared the dinner one of the most savory ever partaken of.

After songs, speeches and toasts to the bride and groom elect the party repaired to the parlor where two merry hours were whiled away. Not before midnight did the company bid their genial host adieu. Those present were Mrs. Millie Bates (chaperone), Misses Grace Matthews, Millie Matthews, Dora Burris, Jessie Wisecarver, Theo Bates. Messrs. Frank Burris, Geo. Bulotti, Adam Adler and Skelton Glaister.

A CERAMIC EPISODE

By Katherine E. Maxwell.

"Oh, I've been such a blooming idiot, Nan," said Ned Brisco, throwing himself on a couch in his married sister's pretty sitting room.

"Ned," said his sister solemnly, "you've done something you're ashamed of. Tell me this minute what it is."

"I suppose I might as well 'fess up,' Nan, and tell you all about it, for Nora is sure to anyhow. You know I've been awfully gone on Nora for months, but I never was quite sure that she cared for me. Of course she's always seemed glad to have me over there and to go out with me and all that, but I never could tell whether she would be willing to let matters go any further or not, and—and"—

"You expected her to come and tell you without being asked," put in his sister sarcastically. "Go on."

"Well," Ned continued lamely, "I read a story the other day that put an idea into my head. It seemed such a fine scheme that I made up my mind to try it."

"Did you find it in 'The Complete Guide to Lovemaking?'" Nan inquired maliciously. Her question was ignored, and Ned went on, turning his head to escape the scornful look in her eyes.

"You see, there was a fellow in the same boat with me. He was awfully gone on a girl, but didn't know whether she was—er—gone on him, you know. And so to find out if she was he up and told her all of a sudden that he was going to be married, and it turned out that all the time she was gone on him, and when he sprung the news on her without any warning she just up and fainted. Of course he caught her in his arms. When she came to, he told her he was going to marry her if she'd have him, and it all ended beautifully," Ned concluded, with a ghastly grin.

"Edward Stiles Briscoe," his sister exclaimed, "do you mean to tell me that you tried that with an intelligent girl with brains? But go on; let me hear to the bitter end."

"When we got back from the golf links this afternoon Nora asked me to come in and have a cup of tea. I'd rather take medicine, but she looks so deucedly pretty when she's concocting the stuff that I've drank gallons of it just for the sake of looking at her."

Mrs. Stewart smiled approvingly at this little burst of sentiment, and, thus encouraged, Ned proceeded with his sorrowful tale.

"We went in the house, and she started the little teakettle going, and while she was waiting for the water to boil she commenced talking about Minnie Traver's elopement, and there I saw my chance and said, 'I'm going to be married in the spring.'"

A groan from his sister was her only comment. "Did she faint?" she asked scornfully.

"Faint! I should say not. It didn't go a bit as it did in the story. Just as I finished, before I ever had a chance to look at her, she dropped a teacup smash on the hearth, and then such a fuss over a bit of china you never saw. She got down on her knees and picked up every tiny speck. She wouldn't let me help her. Kept saying, 'Don't come near; you might step on a piece.' I thought she'd never get the pieces collected, but she finally did and brushed the hearth, and when she stood up I'll be hanged if her eyes weren't full of tears, and all over a silly little cup. It looked like an ordinary little affair to me, but Nora said it was a keepsake—some fellow gave it to her, I suppose. After she tried several times to fit the pieces together she seemed to remember that I was there and said as cool and unconcerned as you please, 'Oh, weren't you saying something about getting married?' I said, 'Yes,' rather weakly, and then she put me on the rack by calmly congratulating me. And, Lord, the questions she asked and laughing all the time! Faint! Oh, yes!" And Ned gave a bitter little laugh.

His sister did not seem to be listening to him, and instead of offering any advice she asked:

"What kind of a cup was it Nora broke?"

"Oh, I don't know!" Ned answered impatiently. "I'm no judge of such things. It looked common enough. Why, there's one just like it," pointing to Mrs. Stewart's tea table.

"H'm!" she said, with a funny little smile. She picked a fleecy shawl up from the foot of the couch and, throwing it over her head, started for the door.

"Where are you going?" Ned asked. "It's almost dinner time."

"I know, but I'm all dressed, and I want to run over to see Nora a minute."

"Don't breathe a word what I've said," Ned pleaded, "but do try to find out from Nora what I said to her. I swear I was in a trance."

"Don't you worry, Neddy boy," his sister said reassuringly. I'll fix things for you. How many cups of tea did you drink, Ned?"

"Not one. Nora was so upset over that cup she forgot the tea and everything else."

"I thought so," Mrs. Stewart announced vaguely and went out quietly. She was gone but a short time and burst in the room again with smiling lips and dancing eyes. "Poor Nora!" she said, trying to look serious. "I found her still crying over that teacup. You see she prized that cup very highly. It was a gem really. We both got one the same day. There was a Japanese tea at our church, and when you bought a cup of tea you kept the cup. They were very valuable, you see. I don't think I care so much for mine as Nora did for hers, and I think it would make her feel better if you would take mine over to her."

"I won't," Ned began, but he glanced at his sister's face and started up, exclaiming:

"Nan, you don't mean"—

"Yes, I do, you great goose," kissing him.

"Here," she cried as Ned rushed through the hall, "take the cup!"

"Hang the cup!" Ned answered, slamming the door and going down the front steps two at a time.—What to Eat.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid, gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes, causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharge, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external med cine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to directions which acompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

An Ornamental Deer.

One of the first things to attract the attention of Baby Clarence was grandma's hatrack, made of a pair of deer horns. One afternoon when he was 3 years old his papa took him to Captain G.'s park. When relating the incidents of the trip to his mamma on their return, he exclaimed, "And, oh, mamma, I saw a deer, and he had a hatrack on his head!"—Current Literature.

A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.
